

Clinical Operation

Reach your goals. On time.

Do you need to accelerate clinical projects without losing sight of the details? Are you looking for local regulatory insight and experience in conducting clinical studies? Will only the most experienced and best educated study experts bring you confidence?

LINK Medical recognises that choosing a CRO is a complex and important decision requiring a great deal of trust.

We can help you with any aspect of the clinical trials process. Just ask.

Clinical Studies

LINK Medical offers full-service clinical study management for phase I-IV, medical device and non-interventional studies, protocol development, feasibility and site identification, study monitoring, quality assurance and control, drug safety, data management, statistical analysis, medical writing and project management.

We work closely in interdisciplinary teams and in a supportive working environment. LINK Medical has conducted clinical studies within a wide variety of therapeutic disciplines since 1995. Effective implementation is the essence of any clinical trial and project. Time to market matters. Therefore, shortening the development time, without compromising safety or quality, is of vital importance.

Our people are trained in applicable regulations and guidelines. You will meet people with thorough knowledge of the processes and standards in the clinical environment along with enthusiasm.

Project Management

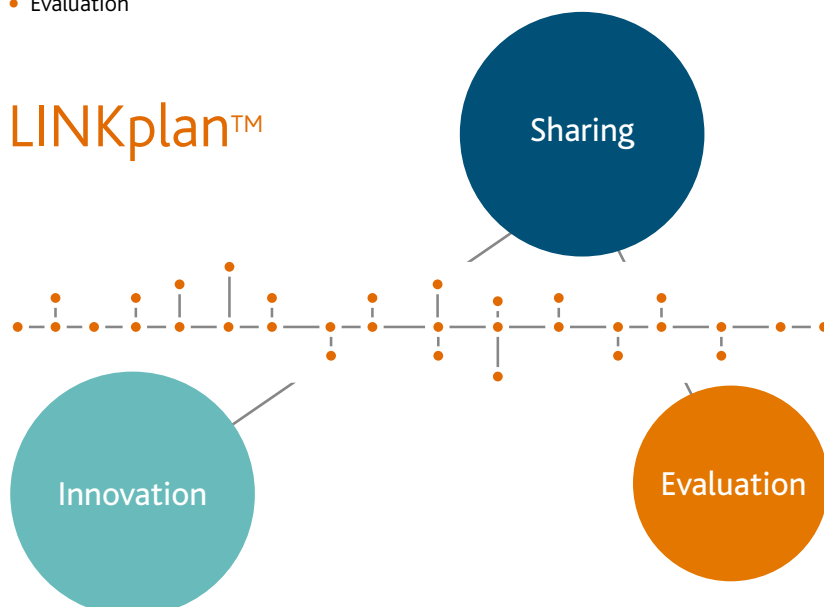

All projects need a plan to meet objectives in a timely and effective manner. They also need to make use of the correct resources and be within defined quality standards. For successful delivery you have to make people and plans work together. We provide a team of experts to analyse and carry out the projects through active communication and focused collaboration.

We develop the optimal regulatory strategy for your product. We provide scientific advice, protocol writing assistance and management of your clinical studies, whether they are small or large, national or international.

LINKplan™ - the backbone of project management

LINKplan™ is our proven project management methodology for successfully managing your project and is based on three core elements:

- Innovation
- Sharing
- Evaluation
